

This docket item will limit the fair use rights of broadcast material. This is a worrisome plan that, if adopted by the FCC, could lead to increased government regulation of technology and reduced fair use rights. It's true that Hollywood and the TV studios have legitimate concerns about piracy, and widespread copyright infringement via the Internet appears to be growing. But it's hardly clear whether this is the wisest approach. Please carefully weigh fair use rights against Hollywood profits.

Thank you,
Ron LaPedis